The Search for the Seesaw

Going east down Nassau Street past Wild Oats and Hoagie Haven and south less than one block we found the “Princeton Borough Playground.” It was a sheet of ice, but we managed to skate our way to the illustrious Seesaw. Upon finding the Seesaw, we proceeded to enjoy and remember its elementary school appeal. In fact, here are some photos of our “findings”:

In addition, we learned that Nassau Street although is an “East-West” road it in fact does curve slightly northward as you continue down it going East. Also we learned that seesawing is something that can be done with two people of relatively different sizes.
